This exercise is meant to have you think about responsible actions that could avoid potential mistakes, rather than have to make an excuse when it's too late.

If your computer/printer/Internet doesn't work and your task is due tomorrow, then you should:

If your family has a busy schedule, but you have schoolwork to do, then you should:

If you forgot to bring home the assignment or textbook you need, then you should:

If you left an assignment at home and it's due right now, then you should:

If you said or did something that offends somebody, then you should:

If people you know tend to make excuses on your behalf, then you should:
