Task:

As you make your way through your class schedule, take time to observe the routines each of your teachers has in place. It could be having your homework out before the bell rings, simply having a textbook out and ready to read, or starting a complex warm-up exercise. Every teacher is different and it's important to be able to adapt to their routines if you are going to be successful in their class.

Identify the routines for each class and record where the following information can be found.
